Rock the Routine

What We Are Building

Rock the Routine is a Red Rocks NIL platform that helps every gymnast turn her story, fan connection, and community work into real opportunities.

Red Rocks already has strong fan energy, a long history, and Who Rocks the House. What is missing is one place where fans, alumni, parents, season-ticket holders, athletes, and businesses can all participate in NIL in different ways.

The platform should not feel like a generic athlete marketplace where the most-followed person gets every opportunity. It should help businesses find the right athlete, help fans feel personally connected, and help less-known athletes get discovered through their stories and causes.

Our line is:

A routine lasts minutes. Its impact on a young fan, a family, and a Utah community can last much longer.

Who Uses the Platform

Fans:

- Want to feel close to the athletes and team.
- Watch stories, scan QR codes, join campaigns, share messages, and unlock offers.

Supporters:

- Want to directly help athletes and community work.
- Donate, subscribe, support athletes, receive thank-you packs, and request celebration videos.

Athletes:

- Want to build their personal brand and earn NIL opportunities.
- Create profiles, record stories, approve content, manage offers, and complete tasks.

Business Sponsors:

- Want to reach Utah audiences and see measurable results.
- Get matched with athletes, fund campaigns, receive creative assets, and track results.

WRTH Administrators:

- Want to find sponsors and manage campaigns.
- Use Partner Finder, approve content, assign tasks, and track funding and outreach.

Fans and supporters overlap, but they are not the same. A fan may scan a QR code, watch an athlete story, or share a message without donating. A supporter gives once, subscribes, buys a personal athlete experience, or funds a campaign.

The Main Concept

Every paid partnership becomes an Impact Routine.

An Impact Routine is a complete athlete-led campaign with:

- An athlete story
- A community cause
- A sponsor or supporter group
- Adobe-made creative assets
- Fan participation
- Campaign tasks and approvals
- A final impact report

The platform should show more than sports and follower counts. It should show who the athlete is outside gymnastics, what she cares about, what audience she connects with, what she can offer, and why she fits a particular sponsor or campaign.

The Campaign We Will Demo

Campaign Name: Confidence Starts Here

Athlete: Fictional Red Rocks gymnast, unless we receive permission to feature a real athlete.

Business Sponsor: Fictional Utah family, wellness, dental, health, or youth-sports business.

Community Partner: Girls on the Run or another WRTH-aligned organization.

Budget: $15,000.

Goal: Help young girls build confidence through sport, mentorship, and community.

The athlete records a short story about why confidence matters to her.

The business funds the campaign because it wants to reach Utah families and build local trust.

Fans participate by scanning a QR code, sharing a confidence message, nominating someone who inspires them, claiming an offer, or donating.

At the end, the sponsor sees campaign results, the athlete earns NIL income, and fans see how their participation helped.

Main Platform Pages

Home Page

The home page should feel cinematic and emotional, with a strong athlete image or short video.

Headline:

Find the story your brand can stand behind.

Main paths:

- I am a fan
- I want to support athletes
- I am a business
- I am an athlete

The page should feature Confidence Starts Here and explain that fans, supporters, and sponsors all have a role.

Get Matched Page

This is the first page a business sees after clicking “I am a business.”

The business answers a short guided brief:

- What do you want your business to achieve?
- Who do you want to reach?
- What cause matters to your brand?
- What campaign format do you want?
- What is your budget?
- Do you want one athlete, a group of athletes, or a team-wide campaign?

Then the platform gives them their best matches.

Example:

Your Best Matches

Based on your goal of reaching Utah families and supporting girls’ confidence:

1. Avery Davis, 94% match
2. Mia Torres, 89% match
3. Sofia Patel, 85% match

Each athlete card should show:

- Athlete photo
- Match percentage
- Why she matches
- Cause alignment
- Audience alignment
- Campaign availability
- Social reach and engagement
- Recommended Impact Routine
- Compare Athletes button
- Build a Campaign button

Example explanation:

Avery is a strong match because she cares about youth mentorship, has a strong family audience fit, is available for an in-person event, and fits your $15,000 campaign budget.

The matching score should use:

- Cause alignment: 35%
- Audience fit: 25%
- Campaign format fit: 20%
- Budget fit: 10%
- Availability: 10%

Explore All Athletes Page

This is separate from matching.

It is for sponsors, fans, and supporters who already know who they want or want to browse independently.

Each athlete card includes:

- Athlete name
- Gymnastics specialty
- Short personal line
- Causes she cares about
- Available campaign types
- Social reach
- Engagement rate

- Starting campaign range
- Availability
- View Story button
- Sponsor This Routine button
- Support This Athlete button

Filters:

- Cause
- Audience
- Campaign type
- Budget
- Availability
- Social platform
- Engagement level
- In-person appearance availability
- Fan Favorite or Rising Routine

Sort options:

- Best match
- Highest engagement
- Best community fit
- Available soonest
- Lowest campaign budget
- Most local audience fit
- Fan Favorites
- Rising Routines

Get Matched means: Help me find the right athlete.

Explore All Athletes means: I want to browse myself.

Fan Favorites and Rising Routines

We should not default to “most followers.”

Instead, feature two equally polished groups:

Fan Favorites:

- Athletes with bigger reach and name recognition.
- Best for broad awareness campaigns.

Rising Routines:

- Athletes with strong stories, high engagement, and room to grow.
- Best for community-first campaigns and discovery.

Both groups receive the same profile quality, photography, story, and sponsor access.

Athlete Profile Page

This should feel like a premium sports feature, not a LinkedIn page.

Example:

Avery Davis
Red Rocks Gymnastics

“Gymnastics taught me confidence. Mentoring younger girls taught me why it matters.”

The profile includes:

- A 45-second athlete Story Seed video
- Causes she cares about
- Social metrics
- Audience information
- Campaign packages
- Content examples
- Past community work
- Availability
- Sponsor fit
- Supporter tiers
- Book a Video button
- Build a Campaign button

The athlete page also includes a Your Impact section.

Your Impact Section

This section answers the question: Where does my money go?

It should say:

100% of contributions support Utah gymnasts through Who Rocks the House and their participation in charitable, civic, educational, and community-focused activities.

Then show campaign progress:

Confidence Starts Here

Campaign goal: $15,000
Raised so far: $8,240
Community supporters: 186
Business sponsor funding: $6,500
Fan contributions: $1,740

What this campaign supports:

- Athlete-led youth confidence event
- Athlete story and fan campaign
- Girls on the Run community activation
- NIL opportunity for participating athletes

Realistic Multimodal AI

Each athlete records or uploads a 45-second Story Seed video.

The platform uses:

- Athlete video
- Audio
- Spoken transcript
- Athlete profile information
- Interests and causes
- Social metrics
- Availability
- Campaign preferences
- Sponsor brief

The AI helps create:

- Athlete bio
- Campaign title
- Sponsor-fit explanation
- Social captions
- Campaign brief
- Suggested content plan
- Campaign task list
- Draft sponsor outreach email

The athlete reviews and approves every public output.

For the prototype:

1. Pre-record one athlete story video.

2. Create a real transcript.
3. Feed the transcript, athlete profile, and sponsor brief into the AI.
4. Show generated campaign copy, social captions, match explanation, and tasks.
5. Use Adobe to turn the approved output into polished visual assets.

Supporter and Fan Experience

Headline:

Join the routine. Back the athlete. Be part of the impact.

Fans and supporters can:

- Watch athlete stories
- Follow campaigns
- Scan QR codes at meets
- Share messages
- Unlock sponsor offers
- Give once
- Subscribe monthly
- Support a specific athlete or cause
- Buy or request an athlete celebration video

Find Your Routine

This feature helps convert someone who does not already know Red Rocks into a fan or supporter.

The visitor answers:

- What matters most to you?
- How do you want to get involved?
- Who are you here for?

Then the platform gives them:

- A matched athlete story
- A matched Impact Routine
- One simple first action

Example:

You care about youth confidence. Meet Avery. She is leading Confidence Starts Here with Girls on the Run. Watch her story, share a confidence note, or support the campaign.

Thank-You Packs and Supporter Tiers

Free Red Rocks Fan:

- Athlete stories
- Campaign updates
- QR activations
- Sponsor offers

Chalk Circle, $10 per month:

- Digital thank-you card
- Athlete update video
- Early campaign access

Routine Partner, $25 per month:

- Personal athlete-life videos
- Family campaign offers
- Quarterly behind-the-scenes update

Impact Champion, $100 or more:

- Limited athlete thank-you video request
- Digital impact report
- Campaign recognition

Premium Celebration Video:

- Paid 15 to 30 second birthday, graduation, good-luck, or congratulations video from an athlete

After donating, supporters should receive a thank-you pack preview.

Example athlete thank-you:

Thank you for supporting me. Outside of the gym, I care a lot about mentoring younger girls because I remember how much it mattered when someone believed in me.

Business Sponsorship Packages

Community Spark, $5,000:

- Athlete story
- One social post

- Sponsor mention
- QR campaign page

Impact Routine, $15,000:

- Athlete story
- Social kit
- Meet-night QR activation
- Sponsor offer
- Final report

Red Rocks Partner, $30,000 or more:

- Multi-athlete campaign
- Community event
- Campaign recap
- Season report

Businesses should clearly see who they are reaching, why an athlete is a fit, what content they receive, what fan action is included, what community impact is created, and what success will be measured.

Partner Finder

Partner Finder is for WRTH administrators.

It helps identify possible sponsors and draft better outreach, but never automatically emails anyone.

The WRTH team enters:

- Business name
- Category
- Website or short public description
- Existing relationship or warm connection
- Location
- Estimated budget

The platform suggests:

- Athlete match
- Impact Routine
- Why the business could care
- Recommended budget range
- Draft outreach email

- Draft LinkedIn message
- One-page Adobe sponsor proposal

Campaign Workspace

Tabs:

- Overview
- Tasks
- Content
- Agreement
- Results

Example tasks:

- Record athlete story
- Approve social creative
- Publish QR page
- Schedule meet-night activation
- Share Instagram Reel
- Complete birthday video request
- Create campaign recap

Every task includes an owner, due date, status, campaign, attachment, and approval state.

Mobile Fan Activation

At a meet, on social media, or from a QR poster, a fan opens a phone page.

Headline:

Share your moment of confidence.

They can:

- Watch athlete story
- Leave a message
- Upload an optional photo or short video
- Nominate someone who inspires them
- Unlock a sponsor offer
- Donate to WRTH
- Share the campaign
- Receive a digital I Rocked the Routine card

One-Year Model

Current model: $200,000

Year 1 target: $646,000

The first-year growth comes from:

- 15 Impact Routines at $15,000 each: $225,000
- 8 Community Spark campaigns at $5,000 each: $40,000
- 3 Red Rocks Partner campaigns at $30,000 each: $90,000
- 500 monthly supporters at $10 per month: $60,000
- 200 celebration videos at $80 each: $16,000
- 3 sponsored fan-match activations at $5,000 each: $15,000

New NIL activity: $446,000

Total projected first-year activity: approximately $646,000.

Three-year path:

Current model: $200,000
Year 1: $646,000
Year 2: $1.24 million
Year 3: $2 million

These are targets, not guarantees.

Adobe Plan

Use Adobe Express for social kits, QR posters, supporter cards, sponsor proposals, and campaign graphics.

Use Adobe Firefly for red-rock textures, campaign visuals, abstract backgrounds, and motion concepts.

Use Photoshop and Lightroom for athlete photo editing and a consistent photography style.

Use Illustrator for the logo, icons, badges, printable assets, and athlete trading cards.

Use Premiere Pro for athlete stories, social Reels, and campaign recaps.

Use After Effects for motion graphics, animated campaign metrics, QR reveals, and the pitch opener.

Use Adobe Podcast Enhance and Audition for clean athlete voice recordings and final audio.

Use InDesign for the sponsor proposal, impact report, and three-year poster.

Use Adobe Capture for Utah rock, chalk, arena, and leotard textures.

Use Substance 3D only as an optional visual feature after the core platform works.

Live Demo and Judge Experience

The judges should not only watch the demo. They should become part of it.

QR Code Stand

Put a small table tent on the judges' table that says:

Scan to back a gymnast.
Try the $10 supporter experience.

A judge scans the code, chooses an athlete, and taps Give $10 Demo.

The contribution is clearly a fake demo transaction. No real payment happens.

Use Supabase or Firebase with realtime updates so the total support number changes on the presentation laptop immediately.

Admin Dashboard Reveal

After the judge taps Give $10 Demo, switch to the WRTH admin dashboard.

Show the new transaction appear:

Supporter: Demo Judge
Athlete: Avery Davis
Campaign: Confidence Starts Here
Amount: $10
Support type: One-time supporter
Thank-you pack: Sent
Status: Received

Then show Avery's campaign total and supporter count increase.

Athlete Trading Cards

Print one card for each sample athlete.

Each card includes:

- Athlete photo
- Short personal story
- Causes
- Engagement or audience highlight
- QR code to athlete profile

- Fan Favorite or Rising Routine label

Hand them to judges before the presentation.

Create them in Adobe Express or Illustrator.

Do not use real gymnasts' photos or official Utah or Red Rocks logos without permission.

Printed Impact Receipt

After a judge scans the QR code, hand them a receipt-style printout.

Example:

Rock the Routine Impact Receipt

You backed Avery: $10

Your support helps fund:

- Athlete-led community activity
- Youth confidence programming
- Approved NIL opportunities

Confidence Starts Here
186 supporters and growing

Three-Year Path Poster

Put a simple printed poster beside the team:

$200K to $646K to $1.24M to $2M

Under it, write:

Rock the Routine adds sponsor campaigns, supporter subscriptions, athlete experiences, and measurable renewal opportunities.

Stickers or Wristbands

Give judges a small sticker or wristband.

Suggested wording:

I Back the Full Roster

If Rock the Routine is the final product name, use:

I Back the Routine

Choose one final brand name before printing and use it consistently everywhere.

Core Features We Must Build

- Home page
- Get Matched sponsor flow
- Matched athlete results page
- Explore All Athletes page with filters and sort
- Athlete profile page
- Your Impact section
- One complete Impact Routine campaign
- Fan and supporter flow
- Thank-you pack screen
- Celebration-video request screen
- Campaign workspace with tasks
- Sponsor results dashboard
- QR code that opens a working mobile page
- Live Give $10 demo button
- Supabase or Firebase realtime update

Optional Features

Only build these after the core product works:

- Ripple Wall 3D experience
- Chalk Notes fan-message mosaic
- Full AI-generated sponsor proposal
- Advanced sponsor analytics
- Interactive availability calendar
- Multiple complete campaigns
- More than one athlete story video
- Full business CRM pipeline
- Campaign Time Capsule recap film

Pitch Close

Do not pitch this as an AI platform.

Pitch it as a better way for Red Rocks athletes, fans, supporters, and businesses to build something together.

Close with:

Red Rocks already has the crowd, the history, and the community trust. Rock the Routine gives every athlete a way to turn that trust into opportunity. Fans can support the athletes they love. Businesses can fund campaigns that matter. And athletes can build a story that lasts beyond the routine.

Every routine ends. Its impact should not.
